FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Strike is Helping Various Companies Deploy Zebra TC56 with Bespoke Mounting & Charging Solution

Brisbane, May 31, 2017 – Strike Group, the world-leading hands-free tech company, has invested extensive industry experience in designing and engineering to manufacture its newest range of mounts for the Zebra TC56 Touch Computer.

'We want to use our Zebra TC56 Strike Alpha Cradles to assist industries such as retail, warehousing, transport and logistics, field mobility, healthcare, and so on.' said Chris Ryan, CEO of Strike Group.

The enterprise-grade design of the Strike Alpha Cradle for Zebra TC56 Touch Computer enables easy user access to their device while it's mounted on their vehicle or sitting on their desktop. The user can also attach an external antenna to the cradle to boost the mobile signal of their Zebra TC56 Touch Computer.

Each TC56 phone holder has an incredible 3amp 12/24 volt charging power pack with volt spike protection to ensure the device never runs out of charge while running mission-critical applications.

Strike Alpha Car Cradles are highly durable phone holders. They have been crash-tested up to withstand 25 g, and complies with ADR and European road laws.

With Strike's innovative device mounting solution, a myriad of industries and fleet management companies can now maximise their use of the Zebra TC56 Touch Computer.
